R. CLERICI.

That our American people should plant which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians have discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until today we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most chronic and fatal diseases. It is his duty to investigate them and in the preparation of this conviction, he has been aided by the most eminent medical writers and teachers. The reason why it cures these and many other ailments is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of women's many peculiar ailments, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is simply attested by thousands of grateful testimonials collected by Dr. Pierce from women who have been cured by it of catarrh, white, yellow, and irregular menstruation, and other ailments, and who are now enjoying perfect health and happiness. This medicine is entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full bottle of this medicine is printed on each bottle wrapper.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the genuine extracts of native medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce. They are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full bottle of this medicine is printed on each bottle wrapper.

The Proper Food for Poultry.

Opinions differ widely as to what is the proper grain ration for poultry. Almost every poultryman has his own ideas on the subject; but, no matter what is used, it is universally conceded that some meat or animal food should be given in connection therewith. What C. S. Carr of Bogus, Mass., thinks on the subject is expressed in the following letter from him: "I think 'Page's' Perfect Poultry Food ought to be kept by the hens all of the time in the winter with other foods, such as cracked corn, oats and wheat."

Any one sending his address on a postal card to C. S. Page, Hyde Park, Vt., and mentioning this paper, will receive by mail, free, postpaid, a sample package of "Page's Perfect Poultry Food."

His Dear Old Mother.

"My dear old mother, who is now eighty-three years old, thrives on Electric Bitters," writes W. B. Brunson of Dublin, Ga. "She has taken them for about two years and enjoys an excellent appetite, feels strong and keeps well. That's the way Electric Bitters affects the aged, and the same happy results follow in all cases of female weakness and general debility. Weak, puny children, too, are greatly strengthened by them. Guaranteed also for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, by the Red Cross Pharmacy, 50c."

Music Hall.

Miles' brick block has been put in fine shape, and is ready to let for dancing parties, meetings and other entertainments. An excellent and safe escape has been erected at the rear of the building, with entrance into the Gordon block. Orders for the hall will be left at coat office of B. M. Miles, 122 North Main street, in Moore & Owens' store.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Night in the "Bad Lands" of Wyoming. Dark-blue vault above, star-studded, arches majestically over red buttes, yellow sand and green sage-brush, now blended by the touch of night to a monochrome of gray. Above the distant peaks gleams the horn of a new moon; a jack-rabbit scurries through the underbrush; far away a lone coyote barks, then silence settles, grim and oppressive.

In the foreground, where a sweep of gleaming rails rounds a promontory of weather-beaten rock which stands like a sentinel at the gate of the canyon, a man emerges from cover with the stealthy tread of a prowling panther. A signal call like that of a bird, then swiftly and silently one, two, three, four, five, six black figures slouch with catlike steps across the belt of moonlight and disappear in the farther shadows. The last man carries a red railway lantern and a claw-bar; and, just around the curve, a poor, brave Swede track-walker lies across the rails he protected with his life.

A moment more and the scream of bolts torn from the fish-plates and the tinkle of spikes wrenching from the stout oak ties, breaks the silence, as a rail is pried up and cast, clanging into the canyon; then, faint and far peals the mellow chime of a locomotive whistle, and where the rails converge to the horizon of the desert to the east, an electric headlight twinkles like a star, and the earth vibrates as to the tread of an oncoming giant. The furtive, skulking forms have disappeared; but in the center of the track the red light burns steadily.

Nearer and nearer thunders the "Limited," its stack belching a rain of sparks, the brawny fireman working like a demon in the glare from the open fire-door, the engineer, clear-headed and alert, half out of his little window, peering into the darkness where lurks the unknown danger. Then—

A shrill scream of the whistle as the "emergency" goes on with full force and the train shudders and creaks with the violence of arrested motion, the sparks flying from the grinding brakes.

Like magic, seven black figures spring from the gloom, and the windows from cab to sleeper are splintered by a fusillade of shots. The "Air-Line Limited" is "help up."

The fireman—stunned from a blow dealt him from behind by a robber who has crawled unseen over the tank-less senseless in the gangway. The engineer whips out a large blue "44" and fires point blank at the outlaw, who rears back with a groan and topples into the canyon. Then a shriek rings out from the darkness and the engineer crumples forward like an empty glove against the boilerhead.

Then—like a bolt from a clear sky—vengeance falls upon the outlaws. Out from the trail around the big rock gallops a posse of armed riders, and on the breast of the leader flashes the silver star of Pinkerton. At his elbow rides a trim young man in clothes of eastern cut, and the bronzed and bearded sheriff who heads the Vigilantes grins approval as the "city chap" with a long distance shot drops the fleeing bandit leader in his tracks, while the remainder of the robbers are captured and manacled with scant ceremony.

This thrilling scene is enacted nightly in Kompe & Mellie's mammoth scenic production of "The Train Robbers," which will appear at the Barre opera house next Saturday afternoon and evening. The management have expended a small fortune in the scenic investiture of the play; and the mammoth locomotive used in the last act is a special triumph of mechanical ingenuity.

It would indeed be a sluggish mortal who would fail to be enthralled by the antics of "Happy Hooligan," in a farce comedy of the same name, primarily based upon comic illustrations from the newspapers. As to plot, the piece is entirely changed from last season, the first act being at a railroad station near the firing line between the Russians and Japanese; the second act is in Memo park, Tokio, and the last act in 'Frisco. You can picture in your own mind the beautiful scenery, costumes and light effects used in these three acts. The costumes are by Hayden and creations of art. There are show girls who know how to wear swell clothes, and the little girls who know how to dance, as well as a male chorus that can sing. All in all, "Happy Hooligan" is the musical comedy treat of the season, and should pack the opera house next Monday evening.
